Elizabeth Lucas Expands Home & Gift Market Presence in 2013

Wholesale Art Company Bringing “New Vintage” to More Design Professionals

After a highly successful 2012, the Elizabeth Lucas Company is expanding its show presence for the 2013 season. If you’re in the interior design field, keep an eye out – new artwork on new mediums is coming your way.

ELC will add Dallas’ Market Center to its yearly show presence, from January 16-21. This new stop comes in between their customary booths at AmericasMart Atlanta (January 11-15) and New York’s International Gift Fair (January 26-29).

New Artistic Headboards, Ottomans, Reclaimed Wood Pieces

ELC is known nationwide for producing “new vintage” artwork – classic visuals reproduced with all-new blending, texturing and layered effects. In 2013 they’re introducing new art pieces, as well as reintroducing current work on new media, like across headboards and atop ottomans.

Show attendees will be the first to see new Elizabeth Lucas art-decorated furniture – like the "Coral 2" headboard on the right. Headboards are available for twin and queen beds, providing a relaxing addition to bedroom decor.

These new headboards join many other pieces of furniture art, including ottomans, settees and chairs. With the same type of ELC prints on the furniture as you’d have on the wall, all rooms in the house become an exploration.

Every exploration is different, too. Elizabeth Lucas will bring a limited selection of their artwork to each marketplace. But the company can place virtually any print on any medium you want: from headboard to chair back to framed wall art.

Green Artwork Featured – Botanicals, Sea Life, Classic Regalia

Every 2013 show will have new Elizabeth Lucas Company artwork to enjoy. In addition to their New Vintage style (seen in “Kayla” to the left), the company uses green inks and reclaimed materials. For example, some of the multi-layer prints at their booth are framed using reclaimed barn timbers!
